Coppelia

Synopsis

Act 1 - The Harvest

A public Square in a small town, with wooden houses painted with bright colors. One house stands out in contrast to the others, with grating before the windows and the door securely fastened. This is the residence of Coppélius.

Swanilda arrives with her friends at the village square. Seeing Coppélia on the balcony, they dances to attract her attention and wonders why the reading figure does not respond. Like everyone else, they believe the doll to be a living person. They tried to attract her attention, but Coppelia has her eyes fixed on her book, of which she does not even turn the leaves. Swanhilda & friends cannot contain their feelings of anger and stormed away.

Coppelia comes 'alive' and started dancing with the dolls in the workshop. Franz was attracted to the music and went to investigate.

Franz was attracted by Coppelia, not knowing that she's a doll and went to join the dolls in their dance.

The village square were abuzz with activities due to the celebration of the wheat harvest.

Swanhilda , friends and the residents were dancing joyfully.

Dr. Coppélius is seen heading back to her home as she recalled that she had forgotten to lock the doors when leaving the house, decided to join in the celebration at the square.

Dr. Coppélius is dancing with his beloved doll – Copplia in her workshop before heading out. While leaving hastily, she had accidently dropped the key to the doll's workshop.

Swanhilda who's dancing with her friends found and picked up the key. They decided to enter and introduced themselves to the 'girl' who did respond to them.

Synopsis

Act 2 - The Toy Workshop

Inside Doctor Coppélius' house, the girls are investigating the puzzling contents of the workshop.

Swanilda draws open the heavy curtains. There she sees Coppelia sitting in a corner. Swanilda salutes the strange girl who remains motionless. She speaks to her, but gets no response. Can it be a living creature? This young lady is a doll made by Dr Coppelius! Swanilda doesn't worry about her rival anymore, but looks forward to the fun of telling Frantz about her discovery. The girls laugh and dances around the studio. They have nothing to fear now.

They accidentally set the dolls in motion. And the dolls begin to dance.

Toy Squirrels appear and dance with Swanilda and Friends

Swanilda & Friends set all toy in motion, while they are having fun, Dr Coppelius returns. Friends escape, except Swanilda puts Coppelia away and disguises as the doll.

Dr Coppelius catches Franz climb up from the window, Franz confesses that he loves Coppelia and wants to marry her. Dr Coppelius is amused that Franz falls for a doll, He drugs Franz and extract the "life force" from his body and use it to breathe real life into his beloved doll, Coppelia.

Swanilda dresses as Coppelia pretending to come to life after Dr Coppelius has transferred Franz's life force to her and in many attempt try to wait Franz and escape.

To celebrate the awaken of Coppelia, Dr Coppelius comments the dolls to dance for Coppelia.

Dr Coppelius presents the Italian Dolls

Swanilda wanted to wake Franz up however, Dr Coppelius insists that she sits on the chair and enjoy the performance.

Therefore, Swanilda creates a mess by setting all dolls on motion to get Dr coppelius's attention and confuse him while she wakes Franz up and escape with him.

Synopsis

Act 3 - The Wedding

The town is preparing for the wedding of Franz and Swanilda as it was foretold by the legend of the stalk of wheat. Amid the preparations in the village square, Angry Doctor Coppélius arrives to object the wedding. They have, after all, created havoc in his life.

He is calmed by Priest and is given a sum of money to cover the damages to his properties.

The Celebration continue. Priest and Children stand up from the sides and start dancing. The residences join in the celebration.

Dr Coppélius brings the dolls to join in the celebration.

The wedding starts with the entrance of the Bridesmaids

There is general rejoicing in the village as Franz and Swanilda are married, thereby fulfilling the prophecy promised by the legend of the stalk of wheat.
