Synopsis

The Invitation to the Ball

Once upon a time, there lived a beautiful and kind girl named Cinderella. Little Cinderella lived happily with her father who loved her deeply. They spent their days in the garden, exploring the fields, laughing and dancing with Group of Fairies.

Her father remarried a woman who had two daughters around Cinderella's age
Not long after the family moved in together, tragedy struck. Cinderella's father fell ill and passed away, leaving her heartbroken and alone. Her once-happy home became cold and unfriendly. She did all her chores without complaining, even though her heart ached. Every night, she slept with Mouse in the kitchen.

One morning, Royal Mistress arrived at their door, carrying an invitation to a royal ball. The prince was looking for a bride, and all the young women in the kingdom were invited. On the day of the ball, Cinderella sat crying in the garden as she did not have a dress for the occasion.

The God Fairies looked around the garden. She pointed her wand at a pumpkin and the Pumpkin transformed into a gleaming golden carriage. And mice turned into magnificent white horses

With a flash of light, Cinderella's torn dress transformed into a sparkling gown, more beautiful than anything she had ever seen. On her feet were tiny glass slippers that shone like stars.

Synopsis

The Ball and the Glass Slipper

The grand ballroom was filled with music and laughter. Every young woman in the kingdom including the Stepmother and Stepsisters was there, hoping the Prince would choose her.

When Cinderella entered the ballroom with the God Fairies, everyone turned to look at her. She was so graceful and beautiful that the entire room seemed to light up. Even the prince, who had been bored all evening, was suddenly captivated.

Without waiting, the prince walked across the room to Cinderella. He bowed low and held out his hand. “May I have this dance?” he asked. The two danced the night away, talking and laughing as if no one else was in the room.

Synopsis
